Annie Here: How Are You?

It’s lunchtime in St. Cloud, and U.S. Marine Corps Veteran Bill Ranczka is sitting in his car in the parking lot at work. He’s had a rough morning, so he’s focusing on breathing deeply and listening to his favorite music. Annie suggested it.

Across town, later that evening, U.S. Army Veteran Juli Joseph is looking in her closet. She’s selecting outfits for the next three days and enjoying quiet time after an intense day at her job as a sexual assault victims advocate. Annie suggested this, too.

It’s not a coincidence that both Ranczka and Joseph heard from Annie. It’s part of the VA care they receive at the St. Cloud VA Health Care System.

Meet Annie

Annie is VA’s automated texting system that reminds Veterans to do self-care activities between appointments. VA intends to begin releasing Annie nationally this fall. St. Cloud is one of 17 VA locations where the system is being tested first.

VA care teams can use Annie to text Veterans many types of reminders to manage conditions. For example, a Veteran might get the message “Hi, it’s Annie with a helpful reminder. Did you remember to take your blood pressure medication? Please reply ‘MED yes’ or ‘MED no.’”

Ranczka and Joseph both receive Annie messages that help them manage anxiety. Their VA psychologist, Dr. Jennifer Roth, Psy.D., LP, signed them up for the program this past January – and technically, she did a lot more than that. Dr. Roth is the VA clinician who helped to design Annie’s mental health self-care messages.

First, Veterans pick the days and times they want Annie to check on them. The initial message always asks, “Are you feeling anxious? Text Y or N.” If the answer is no,
Annie will text back with a message to keep having a great day. If the answer is yes, Annie asks them to choose whether they want to do a breathing, mindfulness or other activity.

“Annie gives them an active coping skill in that moment to decrease their anxiety,” Dr. Roth explains.

The connection matters most

Ranczka says Annie offers an at-home connection to his VA care that he didn’t have before. “I get the text, and it’s like Annie is asking me if I’m okay. I know it’s not an actual person, but it feels like there’s somebody checking on me. I know it leads back to someone, somewhere. No matter how bad I’m doing, at least this program is thinking about me.”

Joseph’s experience is similar.

“I don’t have a lot of people who message me, so when the text comes in, it makes me feel like someone’s there to care for me. Annie came into my life when I really needed it. She kind of feels like a sister. I can count on her to be there every day.”

Joseph adds that the activities Annie suggests have made a big difference in how she manages anxiety. “Instead of going home and watching TV, I look forward to doing what Annie suggests. It helps me because I’m not sitting there on the couch stewing in negative emotions. I’m engaged in a positive activity.”

Annie’s other messages

In addition to anxiety, Dr. Roth has helped to design three other mental health “protocols” for Annie: anger management, grief and activity engagement for elevating mood. Each protocol incorporates proven coping strategies and educational information to help Veterans engage in self-care between appointments with their VA care team.

To date, Dr. Roth has helped to train 35 mental health staff members throughout the St. Cloud health system, and more than 100 Veterans are now enrolled in one or more of Annie’s mental health protocols. Another 100 St. Cloud patients are also enrolled in primary and specialty care Annie protocols, like weight management, hypertension, medication reminders, surgical care and many others.

Everyone’s abuzz about Annie

Dr. Roth says word about Annie has spread fast. “I’ve had Veterans approach me and ask, ‘What do you know about Annie?’ And I’ll respond, ‘Well, actually …’

“It’s been a great experience to be a part of this opportunity to help our Veteran population. Annie is very versatile. It’s been rewarding to see the many ways it has encouraged Veterans to become more active participants in their own self-care.”

Learn More

You can learn more about the Annie App for Veterans and Annie App for Clinicians on the VA App Store. Even though Annie is available as an app, Veterans don’t need a smartphone to use it. The system works on any basic cell phone with text messaging capability, which will make it more widely available to Veterans everywhere.

Low MSA Vacancy Rate at St. Cloud VA

Medical Support Assistants, also referred to as clerks, are an indispensable part of the health care team. They are the glue that binds our care teams together, and are the first voice or face patients encounter when seeking care throughout the health care system.

A steady and reliable customer experience depends on an efficient scheduling process, prompt, easy check-in, and having someone answer patient phone calls, and the MSA community handles these tasks several thousand times per day.

To improve our service to Veterans, recruiting and hiring MSAs has been a focal point for the health care system for the past couple of years, and these efforts have paid off in terms of prompt and efficient service to Veterans.

As of the middle of July, there are over 3,000 MSA vacancies across VHA. At the same point in time, St. Cloud VA had just 5 vacancies out of a total of 176 full-time employee equivalent positions. That’s a vacancy rate of under 3%, and is the lowest in the VA Midwest Health Care Network and 5th lowest across VHA.

Having caring people in these key positions means better service to Veterans. Please continue spreading the word about our Career Fairs (the next one is October 13) because these have played a major role in keeping MSA positions filled.
More Cancer Treatment Options for Veterans

The National Cancer Institute and VA Interagency Group to Accelerate Trials Enrollment (NAVIGATE) is launching at Minneapolis VA Health Care System and 11 other VA sites. (Image courtesy National Cancer Institute)

Veterans at the Minneapolis VA Health Care System with cancer will now have more access to the latest treatment options, thanks to a partnership between VA and the National Cancer Institute (NCI).

The NCI and VA Interagency Group to Accelerate Trials Enrollment, or NAVIGATE, is launching at Minneapolis VA Health Care System and 11 other VA sites: Atlanta; the Bronx, New York; Charleston, South Carolina; Denver; Durham, North Carolina; Hines, Illinois; Long Beach, California; Palo Alto, California; Portland, Oregon; San Antonio; West Haven, Connecticut; and Boston. Boston will also serve as a coordinating center for the effort.

NAVIGATE will build infrastructure at these VA sites to enable more Veterans to take part in cutting-edge clinical trials sponsored by NCI. Such trials typically test cutting-edge experimental treatments such as precision-medicine therapies based on patients’ genetic profiles, or immunotherapies that harness patients’ own immune systems to bring about cures.

The NAVIGATE network will also establish best practices and share insights to help other VAs nationwide enroll more Veterans in cancer clinical trials. Special attention is being given to minority patients, who often have poorer access to new treatments and are not as well-represented in clinical trials in the U.S.

"We are proud to serve as one of the host sites of this important research effort," said Darwin Goodspeed, Acting Director of the Minneapolis VA Health Care System.

While VA has a robust research program—including clinical trials on cancer and other diseases—at more than 100 sites nationwide, VA facilities often face challenges initiating and completing trials, including ones conducted through the NCI National Clinical Trials Network. Local VA research staff, for example, may lack adequate support to handle certain regulatory and administrative tasks involved in these studies. NAVIGATE will help remove those barriers.

NAVIGATE will also seek to enroll Veterans in trials sponsored by NCI’s Community Oncology Research Program that focus on cancer prevention and symptom management.

VA’s involvement in NAVIGATE is being managed through the Cooperative Studies Program, part of VA’s Office of Research and Development. CSP has a long history of running impactful clinical trials focused on Veterans’ health needs. To learn more about CSP and VA Research overall, visit www.research.va.gov.
